The leaders in the administration of President Arthur are all widowers. The President, the Vice President, the Sectary of the Treasury, the Postmaster General, and the two new Judges of the Supreme Court, have no wives.

It is said that Mr. Scoville still feels oppressed over the treatment he has received from Guiteau. The assassin has thrown some pretty hard names at Scoville, but why should Scoville feel hurt if he is honest in the belief that Guiteau is insane and irresponsible?

During the past two years, there have been 101 arrests made in Cook county for the crime of homicide. A majority of these were wilful murders, and notwithstanding hanging is the punishment for a capital crime, not one of the 104 | since was hanged, and only 30 were sent to penitentiary.

Hope can be indulged in that the Gui teau trial, which has been going on apparently for the "self-glorification" of the assassin, will come to an end in the course of two weeks. It has been said by those who have studied the jury pretty thoroughly, that it will return a verdict of guilty of murder in the first degree in twenty minutes after it re-

Politics does make strange bedfellows. We have this illustrated by the present positions of the Chicago Tribune and the Inter Ocean in regard to Senator John A. Logan. . Herotofore the Tribune was never in a mood to say anything good of Logan, while the Inter Ocean was continually chanting his praise. Mr. Nixon, of the Inter Ocean, an office, the collectorship wanted at Chicago, but Jesse Spalding won the prize. The Inter Ocean blames Logan for this, and severely criticises him and in fact abuses him, while the Tribune shrewdly takes advantage of the situation, and not only applauds General Logan but pats him on the back.

The latest news about the in-Madison we take from the State Journal of Tuesday: "The preparations for inauguration day appear to hang fire. Beyond the fact that four companies of militia have been ordered out, at the marvelous expense of seventy-five cents per man, and that a band from Oshkosh has been engaged, nothing appears to be known at the Capitol concerning the matter. Colonel Chapman is in Milwaukee, to-day, trying his best to stir up a little enthusiasm, but from the fact that the State officers-elect do not appear to be ambitious for any ceremonial, and Governor Smith does not feel authorized to expend any money out of the contingent fund for this purpose, the prospects are not favorable. The Colonel is the soul of activity, himself, however, and if any thing comes out of the inaugural affair, it will be almost wholly owing to his individual energy, working under most manifest disadvantages."

There is some hope that the Republicans in the famous congressional district in Mississippi, known as the shoe-string district, and now represented by the notorious Chalmers, will have justice done them. Chalmers has held a seat in Congress from that Edistrict, which he got through the most outrageous and shameless frauds, making no pretense himself that he was rightfully entitled to the seat, but keeping it simply because he had no regard for honor, and further that a Democratic House was willing that he should sit in it. Lynch, the confestant, is a colored man, and has been in Congress from that district before the Democrats organized the fraud movement. Even the Vicksburg Herald, a Democratic newspaper, confesses that Chalmers secured his seat through the most transparent frauds, and demands that justice no longer be insulted by Lynch being deprived of his seat. The present House being Republican, there will be no unnecessary delay in giving the stolen seat to Mr. Lynch.

DAMAGING EVIDENCE.

Gutteau Going Down Under Weight of It. WASHINGTON, D. C., Dec. 27.-Dr. A. E. McDonald, Superintendent of the New York Hospital for the Insane, who has had under his charge more than 6,000 insane patients, testified to-day on behalf of the government in the Guiteau trial, that the assassin is, and has been for an indefinite period, sane and responsible, and specifically that he was sane and responsible on the 2d of July, when he shot the President. In addition, he testified that the assassin had been playing the part of an insuno man the beginning of the trial, and saying frankly, in private, that he knew he was not insane, and, having looked up the law on the subject, he expected, if acquitted on the ground of insanity and incarcerated in an insame accounts. asylum, to be liberated very soon by being pronounced sane by a commis-

Guiteau did not seem at all depressed. He came in with his guards as cheerful as ever. He looked up the morning newspapers as soon as his handouffs had been removed, turning to J. M. Guiteau and to Security however in the morning the morning to the morning the morning to the morning t and to Scoville, however, in the mean-time, to thank them for the "Christmas cheer" they had provided for him yesterday. He told Scoville that he him yesterday. He told Scoville that he had enjoyed it thoroughly, all the more since it was unexpected. He asked rather perfunctorily for the health of "Frankie" (Mrs. Scoville, his sister), who is going home in a day or two rather than become insane, the wear and tear of the trial telling on her severely. Then he is thought him that he cought to tear of the trial telling on her severely. Then he bethought him that he ought to say something to "the American people" about it. So he glanced at the reporters and said; "I had a nice Christmas. I hope everybody else did. I had a nice Christmas dinner—fruit and flowers and candies; plenty of lady visitors, and gentlemen, too. Altogether, a very nice Christmas." Then he subsided for a while.

Christmas." Then he subsided for a while.

Dr. McDonald was sworn as the first witness. He is one of the bost witnesses the government has placed on the stand. Tall, black-haired, black-bearded, and handsome, and well-equipped and self-possessed, he indured the long ordeal from 10 until 3 with perfect composure and courtesy. He said some of the most and courtesy. He said some of the most damaging things that have yet been said said about the assassin, and, on a severe cross examination by Reed and Scovillo, was not shaken in any particular.

Of course, Guiteau did not sit quiet under such testimony. His interruptions became more and more frequent as the evidence against him grew stronger and stronger. His pet expression to day was:

"Oh, tall us about Abraham; he's my example. This other talk is stuff and non-sense." Nothing more was said about the dock, chiefly, perhaps, because his performances during Dr. McDonakl's examination illustrated what he said of his acting.

TEACHERS' ASSOCIATION.

Madison, Dec. 27.—The semi-annual meeting of the State Teachers's Association commenced to-night in the Senate Chamber. A large number of prominent educators from all parts of the State were present. The opening address was delivered by the Rev. Kerr C. Anderson, of Oshkosh. His address was a profound treatment of the subject of education from a scientific standpoint, tracing its progress from the old to the new meth-tongue; teach without compulsion, and do not beat children to make them learn; pupils must love their master and not beat those nothing should be learned by everything first in the heart; do not teach for two hours consecutively; teach a thing first, and then the roason of it; let everything be caught by induction an experiment. "QUESTIONS ANSWERED,"

A Visitor Who Was Above the Vanities of This World. [From the Brooklyn Eagle.]

"Are you one of the editors of this newspaper?" she asked in a fluttering tone, approaching the man who does the "Questions Answered" for the Eagle.

"Yes," he replied, taking her in at a glunce. "Make the waist plain and glance. "Make the waist plain and shirr on the skirt; put in an apron front and leave the back of the dress full with a narrow floures at the bottom, and the encyclopedia turned away to his work,

"I didn't want to ask you about dress," she faltered. "I hope I am above the vanities of this world. I have been a church member, but I am bewildered about my responsibilities," and her eyes filled with tears.

"Are you an idiot, lunatic, married woman, or habitual drankard?" inquired the "Questions" man, running over the Norvam Organum to see if the Plesiosaurus laid eggs or suckled her young.

"Sir!" she demanded, with rising indignation.

"Because if you ain't, you're legally responsible," he answered, turning to the question: "How could the children of Adam marry the daughters of man, if there was no man before

"I don't mean that. I want to understand whether I am a free agent, or if I am—

"That depends upon how you have made your contract. If you bought the goods outright you are only liable for the urchase price, but if you work on comnission_

"No, no. Not that;" and streaming lears roused the "Questions" man to some show of interest. "I am in doubt. Which way shall I turn?" Well, my dear, that depends much on the dance. In the waltz you turn from left to right until you reverse. In "Good Heaven!" ejaculated the inquirer, "he thinks I dance. No, no, no! You don't understand me. I want to understand the right road." "Yes, yes; I see. That depends upon circumstances. If you're going to the cemetery, you take a Greenwood car. If you're going over to Williamsburg, look out for a Greenpoint and Myrtle avenue core or if you want the circus. avenue car; or, if you want the circus, you will find the Fulton street..."

"Merciful Providence! It is not that, either. Can you scoff at me when my head is howed thus in sorrow?"
"Oh, that's it!" replied the "Questions" man, glancing through Rollin's history to find the difference between a teandinavian and a Swedenborgian. "Get a brown chip turned up at the back or on the left side, and trim it with a yard of Spanish lace and a bunch of forgot-me-nots in the front. Or, you might try a white Leghorn with—"

"Can't you understand me?" she moaned, wringing her hands. "Don't you see that my feet are sore and weary, looking for the right path?"

asked the "Questions man, scratching his ear. "Pare 'om down carefully and put on four drops of lemon, or—" "You mock me!" she sobbed. "Pray, et me rest a moment. The "Questions" man regarded her sympathetically, and turned to the inquiry, "Did the Athenians fry their dams or eat them raw?" while he gave her time to recover. .

"I come for information," she continued, at length; "I want to know what I can do. I am in a fever—" "Salts!" proclaimed the encyclopedia with energy. "You want sales; a table-spoonful an hour before breakfast. That will reduce the fever, and then—"

"You horrible wretch!" sobbed the unhappy woman, rising. "I came to you because I thought you could guide you because 1 thought you could guide not to the spiritual fountain for which I am thirsting, and you insult me in this wonton way!" and she flepped out of the office with riotous indignation.

"Most unaccountable female," soliloquized the "Questions" man. "I told her what I thought she wanted to know, and she got a good ag the follow did and she gets as mad as the fellow did when I told him that pawnbroking took its origin in shoving Jonah in the spout. I've got to have more salary for this business, or the Eagle must get another num," and the encyclopedia bent his attention upon his question, "What postage did Paul pay on his first opistle to the Corinthians?"

A Boot-Buttoner. "Please draw upon the blackboard an interrogation point," said a teacher to one of her pupils. "Can't make a good one," replied the boy.

"Draw a boot-buttoner," said the teacher; "that will answer."
The boy took the crayon and drew a hair-pin. Sharp rebuke by the teacher. Other pupils smile.

It was a splendid spectacle, that fam-ous masquerade ball, which was given as the valedictory of the old and the salutathe valeutory of the old and the samua-tory of the new year, at the opening of one of the most brilliant seasons our national

Besides these, there were gathered at the capital the usual winter multitude of noted politicians, financiers, anthors, artists, beaux, boauties, leaders of fashion and queens of society. Conspicuous among these bright lights of the world, were two who were termed—one the "lion," and the other the "belle" of the season.

They were both young, handsome, gitted, and one was wealthy.
The name of the first mentioned was Tudor Hereward. He was an accomplished scholar, an eloquent orator, a rising statesman, and although but twenty-seven years of age, he was already an able party leader in the national. able party leader in the national House of Representatives. The "belle" of the winter was Lieda

She was a beautiful stately blonde, with a brilliantly blooming complexion sparkling purplish blue eyes, a small aquiline nose, pouting ruby lips, and shining, rippling auburn hair. Her dresses were the happiest "inspira-

To say that nearly all the young ladies were more or less infatuated with the "lion," and that quite all the young men were in love with the "belle," would be but a faint statement of the situation. And that these two were utterly devoted to each other was too apparent to all. But ah! for "the course of true love"— there was an insurmountable obstacle in the way of its happy termination in marriage.

The belle of the season was a betrothed maiden!

The fact was not generally known, for it had not been estentationally announced in the society column of the newspapers, but Miss Von Kirschberg was really engaged to be married to Mr. Nicholas Bruyin, a millionaire, much richer and very much older than her own father. So you see!

The ancient bridegroom-expectant had not come with the widowed father and motherless daughter to Washington, so that few in the oity know of the great man's existence, and none knew of his relations to the beauty and heiress.

Least of all did Tudor Hereward, her devoted knight, suggest the truth. For

Why she had concealed the fact of her marriage engagement, and why she had encouraged and even nuvited the exclu-sive attentions of Mr. Hereward, is, perhaps, not difficult to understand.

In the first instance it was probably nothing more than vanity prompted her to seek to attract and monopolize the this true?" attentions of the most brilliant society man at the capital. Possibly she meant no harm at all, and had no ultimate object in view. But she who plays at found her there.

She was reclining on the rustic seat, and had taken off her mask for air, re-vealing the fair proud face of Leda Von Kirschberg.

He had not expected this revelation of her identity, and he felt that his presence at this moment might be consider-ence at this moment might be considered an inexcusable intrusion upon the privacy of the lady.

"Leda," he said, deprecatingly, as he stood before her and removed his own mask, "please to pardon my indiscretion, but I have been trying to make an opportunity for speaking with you all the evening—in fact, all the day—but have not sinceeded oven in secting you until

"Tudor, sit down here for a little while. The rooms were so warm and the crowds so donse that I felt like suffocating; so I came out here to unmask and mhale a breath of fresh air," she saud, as she smilingly made room for him beside her. "I am very glad you did so! I presumed to follow you. Do you forgive me for my presumption?" he inquired, as he bowed and took the offered seat.

he bowed and took the offered seat.
"That depends," she answered archly.
"How could you know me to follow me?
Or were you here."

Or were you perhaps, following an un-known white domine that had caught your flitting fancy!"

"How could I know you?" he repeated gravely, taking her hand and fixing his eyes on her levely face—"How could I known you?" eyes on her levely face—"How could I known you? By the same simple, universal law of nature through which I know myself—for you are my sweeter, purer, higher self! Leda, my queen, do you imagine that any disguise could hide you from my knowledge? My heart would always recognize you Leda!"
"Oh, Mr. Hereward!" she murmured in a low, distressed tone, whose meaning he could not have perceived, for he went on to plend.

"I have been seeking you for many hours, my love, my queen! Not to tell you in set speech that which my whole life in your dear presence has been telling you since we first met, and in that meeting recognized each other! Ah, lady mine! Ever since that sacred momay mine: Eversinee that sacred moment of meeting and mutual recognition, I have been tempted to believe in the old heathen myth, that man and woman were originally one being; but that Jove, in a rage, cleft them in two, leaving the halves to seek each other sorrowing through all the ages! To seek in van— as we see by all the mismatched couples in the lower world-except in such cases as ours: for, sweet lady, I have found my completion in you and you yours in me. And we know it now.!!

"Oh, Mr. Hereward!" she mouned, in an almost mandible tone.

"Thus, dear Leda, I have not followed you here to tell you that which you feel and know so well, but only to ask your permission to speak, at once, to your good father and invoke our blessing on our betrothal. But even this I scarcely need to mention-for surely I know I have your sanction for it.'

"Oh, Mr. Hereward! Pray, pray do not talk to me in this manner!" she meaned, in agitation, as she withdrew her hand from his fond clasp and covered her white face.

He gazed on her in surprise and noeasiness, yet scarcely taking in the full meaning of her words.

"But why? Why may I not speak to you in this way? Why, Leda? Why?" he inquired, trying to take her hand again.

She drew it away as she faltered:
"Oh, Mr. Hereward! Because—because he said, drawing in a hard breath. "Is "Oh, yes, Mr. Hereward! It is true! And it is heart-breaking!" she moaned, in a voice full of tears. "Leda! In the name of Heaven! What do you mean? Explain yourself, I im-plore you!" he urged, in an agony of sorrow, auxiety, and confusion.

"I mean—I mean—Oh, Tudor! My heart is broken!" And she dropped her head on her bosom and again covered her face with her hands,
"Leda! Leda!" he cried with anguish.

"Oh, Tudor! Our friendship has been so precious, so delightful to me! And—and—all our communion has been so imgiven by Senator S., in his splendid new mansion in the northwest quarter of the city, was destined to decide their fate,

He took no character. It would not have been in harmony with his proud, factidious nature to play any pert, or, at sobbing sirls shook her bosom and solve improving, purifying, elevating to my soul. I am so much less vain, selfish and frivolous than when 'you first met me, the spouled child of fortune. Our precious, delightful friendship has saved and redeemed me! And—and—1 pray that I may enjoy it forever. But—but—it must be only friendship," she said, while heavy, sobbing sirls shook her bosom and harlequinade.

HOW OFFICIALS SWEAR.

Comparison of Oaths of Loyalty Taken in Different Countries. [From the New York Timex.]

A comparison of the official oaths of several countries, apropos of the Brad-laugh affairs, is not uninteresting. France demands no oath, nor even any equivalent formality, before her Legislators enter upon their duties. Even under the empire, the Deity was not called upon, the simple formula being: "I swear fidelity to the Emperor and the constitution." In Austria, also, there is no cath, but, in reply to a question from the President of the Roichstein from the Roichstein rath whether the new member "promises loyalty and obedience to the Emperor, inviolable observance of the constitution, as well as other laws, and con-scientious fulfillment of his duty," the new member simply replies, "I promise." The reason that the members of the German Parliament take no oath is that many of them are under an oath of allegiance to their respective states in the German federation; and so a conflict of duty might arise if two oaths were insisted upon. The Prussian members of Parliament take an oath beginning "I swear by God the omnipotent and omniscient," and ending "so may God those who choose, it is provided, may add, "through Jesus Christ to eternal bliss, amen." The Spanish Deputies are put through semething of a catechism. The Secretary asks them: "Do you swear to observe, and to make others observe the constitution of the Spanish monarchy? Do you swear obedience to the legitimate King of Spain, Alfonso XII.? Do you swear well and true to behave in the mission confided to you by the nation, always and in everything seeking the welfare of the nation?" The answer expected is, "Yes, I do swear," and the replication is, "If you do so, may God reward you. and if you do not, may He call you to account." In 1879, it may be said, Senor Castelar and fifteen others were the Bradiaughs of Spain, but their objections were not based on religious or irreligious grounds. In Italy the President of the Chamber of Deputies says with elaborate politeness, "I invite the honorable gentleman to take eath in the form following: "I swear to be faithful to the King and to observe loyalty to the fundamental statute and the other the fundamental statute and the other laws of the state, with a single view to the inseparable welfare of the King and the country." The new Deputy responds with the single word, "Giurgo," (I swear). The oath to which Mr. Bradlaugh objects seems harmless cough. It reads:

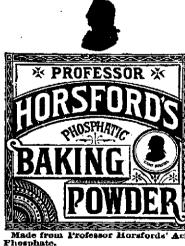

"I do swear that I will be faithful and hear allegiance to her Majesty Onean bear allegiance to her Majesty, Queen Victoria, her he rs and successors, according to law; so help me God."

Obviously, any man who believes in God, whether Jow or Mohammedan or Christian, might honorably assent to every letter of this cath. And so, too, of course, might any man who believes in one God at all. For him the oath lacks its usual sanction, and scrupulous onor might lead him to point this out at the time of complying with the cus-tom of oath talking; but there can be no doubt that dozens, perhaps scores, of other members of Parliament do not agree with Mr. Bradlaugh in the view of the subject. He, having explained his position once for all, connot be expected to be forever explaining and objecting, and so cannot be blamed for swearing, The United States, it is generally known, have two oaths, but their precise forme are familiar.

Throat, Lungs, Heart Stomach. Liver.

Head, nerves, kidneys, bladder, womb, and blood affections of the urinary organs, gravel scrofuls, rhemmatism, catarrh, asthma, brought tis, dyspepsia, &c. DR. PRICE'S REPUTATION!

Hha been acquired by candid, honest dealing and years of successful practice.

My practice, not one of experiment, but founded on the laws of Nature, with years of experience and evidence to sustain it, does not tear down, make sick to make well; no harsh treatment, no trifling, no flattering. We know the cause and the remedy needed; no guess work, but knowledge gained by years of experience in the treatment of Chronic Diseases exclusively; no encouragement without a prospect. Candid in our opinions, reasonable in our charges, claim not to know everything or cure everybody, but do lay claim to reason and common sense. We invite the sick, no matter what their aliment, to eall and investigate before they abandon hope, make interrogations and decide for yourselves; it will cost nothing as consultation is free. Visits made regularly.

THE bee-beetle can draw forty times lts own weight.

THE eggs of the cheesemite are so minute that a pigeon's egg would hold fully 100,000,000 of them.

THE sea anemone can at its pleasure turn inside out, and again assume its natural shape and appearance.

The census figures show that more than three females of the pourse in the United States live at an elevation of less than 1,000 feet above the sea. THERE is in Springfield, Mass., a piano made in 1770 by an uncle and brother of John Jacob Astor, both of whom were at that time piano makers in London. THE grasshopper has between his throat and his stomach an apparatus called a gizzard, with more than 200 teeth in it, for grinding his feed.

Ir has been reckoned that a single aphis, or plant-louse, may give rise in one summer to a quintillion (1,000,000,000,000,000,000) of little ones.

Whire alligators found in Brazil travel far and well on land. Their skulls and bones are frequently seen in the forests, and they deposit their eggs in the woods.

THERE lies buried near Naples, not only the cities of Herculaneum and Pompeii, but another which flourished 1,000 years before Christ, the ancient city of Cumw. Few remains now exist to stimulate the mind of the traveler.

More than one-tenth of the inhabiand the United States live in ten-cities—New York, Philadelphia, Brook-lyn, Chicago, Boston, St. Louis, Bulti-more, San Francisco, New Orleans and Cleveland—whose aggregate population is 5,033,760.

THE whistle of a locomotive can be neard 3,300 yards through the air; the noise of a train 2,500 yards; the bark of a dog and the report of a musket can be heard 1,800 yards; the roll of a drum or an orchestra 1,600 yards; the human voice travels 1,000 yards; the croaking of frogs, 900 yards; the chirping of crickets, 800 yards.

DR. Jourson tells an extraordinary story of a sea-cucumber which he pos-sessed. He forgot to furnish it with troob water, and the accuture became sick and dejected. Under this neglect it wasted away in a most remarkable man-ner. One by one it ejected its tentacles, its teeth, its digestive tubes. These fragments lay here and there, scattered about the aquarium. Still what was left of the creature was not dead. Its empty sack contracted at the least touch. soon as fresh water was provided the animal began to revive again, reproduc-ing one after another of its lost organs, and at the end of two or three months appeared to be as well and as happy as before.

Takench newspapers report the discovery in Algiers, by the archaelogist M. Tarry, of a city which had been intembed in the sand. M. Tarry's attention had been awakened by the mound-like appearance of the sandy soil, and some digging brought to light the minarets and upper roution of a pressure. Further newspapers report the discov and upper portion of a mosque. Further excevations laid bare a terrace, a tower and about a dozen houses, all in exceland about a dozen houses, all in excellent preservation. He reported his discoveries to the Government of Algiers, which has undertaken to have the site thoroughly explored. The place is in the southern part of the province, not far from the town of Ouargia, and exposed to the full blast of the sandy winds from the desert. Probably a succession of siroccos bearing clouds of sand cession of siroccos bearing clouds of sand completely filled up the streets and houses, making the town uninhabitable. and so drove cut the population. At present there is no ground for conjecture as to the date of the occurrence.

A Boon for Gentlemen.

An agency in Paris furnishes men to make calls at a fixed rate per hour. If this conventional sort of sham visiting is insisted on no American city, say of 80,000 inhabitants and over, should be without so admirable an arrangement. It is true that few carnest men make calls before they are married because of "business," and after they are married it is well known that the wife makes all the calls in every well-regulated family. None the less, the unmade call is a terrible burden on the masculine con science. There is first the vague feeling that he ought to have made the eall, the series of doubtful excuses for not having made the call, and, lastly, poignant remorse that it is now too late to make any call. Under these successive shocks a social conscience, seared as with a hot iron, is at last developed, and with a not iron, is at last developed, and a man gracefully accepts all manner of hospitality, from a dinner down, with never a call to acknowledge the debt. An agency will cure this after a fashion, and an agent—"calls executed with nestness and dispatch"—would probably learn how to leave, when to leave, and, above all, not to sit and say nothing, silent as a sentry box.—Springfield (Mass.) Republican.

OLD, YET NEW.

The time honored play of "Uncle Tom's Cabin" has been given here so often that it seems as if the people would tire of it, but they do not seem to. Next Saturday evening it is to be given again at Lappin's Music hall, but the promise is made that it will be given as never before in this city. Smith's great double company have added so many attractions to the play, which in itself has much, that they have drawn packed houses everywhere, and those who want to get good seats should secure them at Prentice & Evenson's, early. Read what the Milwaukee Republican says:

Yesterday, Manager Smith's "Uncle Yesterday, Manager Smith's "Oncie Tom's Cabin" Company, with its two Topseys, two donkeys, and other "phenominal" features, began an engagement at the Academy. The house was packed, crowded, jammed in every part, and the entertainment gave great satisfaction. The selection of Sam Lucas to play Under Tom was an excellent idea. Mr. cle Tom, was an excellent idea. Mr. Lucas is the only colored man in this country who has ever attained anything gregational church, Saturday evening, was pronounced to be of the best, if not best, ever given in this place. Notwithstanding the bad condition of the roads, the house was well filled. Shortly after seven o'clock the curtain was drawn back, displaying two splendid trees, very beautifully decorated and heavily laden with presents. The exercises consisted of vocal and instrumental music, declamations, tableaux, etc. Also, a broom drill by the young ladies, commanded by Miss Della A. Welton. It was exceed-ingly well done, and called forth great merriment, brooms being used instead of the more dangerous weapons. The dec-lamations were well selected, and exccedingly well rendered. The tableaux, of which there were many, were the best arranged that it was ever our lot to behold. After the close of the literary ex-ercises came the distribution of presents, which were numerous, and many of them valuable. Rev. D. B. Jackson received a sealed envelope contaming a twenty dollar gold piece, which he stated should not be used for the purchase of be used for the purchase of flour, pork or potatoes, but should be in-vested in something that would call to mind the kindness of the donors in after years. We cannot hero enumerate the happy recipients of valuable presents, but suffice it to say, they were many. Great credit is due to all who participated in arranging the entertainment, nothing being left undone that could in any way contribute to its success.

MONIA, CONSUMPTION and all Discusos of the THROAT, CHEST AND LUNGS.

BALSAN OF TOLL Has always been one of the most important weapons wielded by the MEDICAL FACULTY against the control of COUGHS, COLDS, ERON-TION in its ineignest and advanced stages, and all discases of the THROAT, CHEST and LUNGS, but it has never been so advantageously compounded as in the celebrated TOLU, ROCK and RYE. In addition to its soothing Balsamic properties, it affords a diffusive stimulant and tonic to build up the system after the cough has been relieved.

CAUTION! Do not be deceived by dealers who try to palm off upon you flock and Rye in place of our TOLU, ROCK AND RYE, which is the ONLY MEDICATED article made - the gentaine has a Private Die Proprietary Stamp on each bottle. THE TOLU, ROCK and RYE CO., Proprietors- 4! River St., Chicago, !!!. Sold by Druggists, Grocers and Dealers Everywhere!
